MICHAEL S. MALONE is one of the nation's best-known technology writers, his writing synonymous with the story of Silicon Valley. Malone spent nearly a decade as ABCNews.com's "Silicon Insider" columnist, and prior to that was a New York Times columnist and the host or producer of four public television series. The Guardian of All Things is the fascinating story of humanity's quest to record its memories for the future. From cave paintings to microchips and beyond, with detours for the "memory theatres" of the Renaissance and modern studies of the brain, Malone mostly examines the exterior technology of memory, but his reflections on the implications of those technologies are thoughtful and ...Michael Malone looks at the story of memory, both human and mechanical, and the historic turning points in that story that not only changed our relationship to memory, but also changed us as human beings. Full of anecdotes, history, and advances of civilization and technology, is a lively, sweeping, and epic journey along a trajectory of history no other book has ever described, one that will ... "[T]he story of memory... is the story of freedom," writes ABCNews.com technology writer Malone (The Future Arrived Yesterday) in this sweeping and ambitious story. - The Guardian Of All Things Epic Story Human Memory Michael S Malone
